Phillip Wolff is an Associate Professor in Psychology and Linguistics at Emory University. His research investigates the nature of human conceptual representation and processing, drawing on computational techniques from Natural Language Processing, Machine Learning, and Big Data Analytics to explore causal reasoning, future thinking, and the large-scale structure of the mental lexicon. Dr. Wolff’s research has been supported by grants from NSF, Google Research, and The John Templeton Foundation.