CULTURE, LEARNING, & EDUCATION

BARRY HEWLITT
ANTHROPOLOGY
WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

JASON YEATMAN
INSTITUTE FOR LEARNING & BRAIN SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

CASSIDY PUCKETT
SOCIOLOGY
EMORY UNIVERSITY

SUSAN GELMAN
PSYCHOLOGY
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Our ability to teach and learn from each other is a foundational aspect of human nature. It has underpinned the remarkable evolutionary success of our species and remains critical to the fortunes and prospects of modern societies. This CMBC Symposium brings together perspectives from ethnography, developmental psychology, neuroscience, and the sociology of education for a cross-cultural and interdisciplinary investigation of what we have learned about the many ways in which we learn.

Panel discussion to follow.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27
1:00-5:30 PM
PAIS 290
cmbc.emory.edu